First to See the Light: EIT 40 Years of higher education

By Kay Morris Matthews & Jean Johnston

This highly illustrated book is a celebration of EIT's 40 years as an institution and its rich and vibrant history. It encompasses the respective histories of the campuses in Hawke's Bay and Tairāwhiti. It includes its people's stories, both successes and struggles, and the collective achievements that shaped EIT into what it is today - one of New Zealand's highly regarded and respected tertiary institutions.

There is much to celebrate when we see how far EIT has come. This is a story of many people working tirelessly together to advance the people, communities, and businesses of our regions by creating and building a strong tertiary institution.

More than 150 retired and current staff members willingly engaged with the collaborative project, as well as great numbers of graduates. Woven throughout is extensive archival material.
